but as I hope (for the moment) that the Bavarian Academy shall be in the case to do it later in lieu of myself, I wait. This in confidence.

I have not received some parts of the Proceedings of your dead and take the liberty of noting my defects on a sheet. — From the Clarks and from Brewer (to whom I have written some letters) I am without any answer and I fear misfearing, therefore I shall be happy to receive your kind directions of their desalling. — In this dreadful time I linger for a friendly letter from you. Also I wish to know whether you cannot bestow upon the the 3th vol. of your excell^t. Genara, which I never received.
I shall harvest a profound consolation from you next letter. Therefore do, my beloved friend! what your heart speaks! Farewell, for ever perhaps, because this war weakens my old heart. God bless us! Yours
