

Oct. 15/90

My dear Mrs. James,

You did not know what you asked yesterday in taking the three bound volumes of Mosses. Before screwing up the box this morning I made an examination of them and I find that they contain the cream of the whole collection, in fact what gives to the collection its principal value. In these volumes are over 1400 (1413) specimens, and among them are rare specimens that I have looked for in vain where I thought that they ought to be & have wondered that they were not to be found. Evidently Mr. James had gathered into these books all of his most valued specimens, and however <sup>much it is to be regretted</sup> ~~much~~ ~~amazing~~ ~~regret~~ I cannot let them go. I would rather that you should take all the risk of the material.

I am exceedingly sorry to disappoint you in this way, and if any substitute can be ~~thought of~~ <sup>suggested</sup> of less serious value I shall be very glad to make it.

With kindest regards I remain

Y. V. T. S.W.

---

Watson, Sereno. 1890. "Watson, Sereno Oct. 15, 1890 [to I. B. James]." Asa Gray correspondence

View This Item Online: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/223814>

Permalink: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/261982>

Holding Institution

Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by

Arcadia 19th Century Collections Digitization/Harvard Library

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The Library considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection

License: <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/4.0/>

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org>.