

brought by Mrs. Ward, who said they were not as large as she had seen by considerable. They have a very delicious flavor. I shall send father some roots of this, & perhaps other varieties in the fall (Myrtles seedling, St. British green). We saw much larger next day at Horticultural exhibition. They looked like ^{small} Tomatoes for size & shape. - huge distorted things.

Mr. Ward's brother, also his son Dr. Ward at dinner at the post 6. - nice time. Music in the evening. - Mr. Ward of Exeter (also a lawyer) such a merry man.

+ Saturday. Dr. G. went to town in the morning on business. ~~To the afternoon tea party~~ ^{to the afternoon tea party} We went, Mr. Ward, 2 Miss Ward, Mr. & Mrs. in a carriage. stopped first on Clapham Common to see the splendid house & grounds of Mr. Hutton & then Mr. Ward & Mr. Putney, & across Hammersmith bridge to Bisswick. - the 3 last great Horticultural Shows of the season. Many thousands of people there. (tickets 5/-) scattered over the ground. I met splendid flowers & fruits. Some under open tents. Heaths in pots bearing some millions of flowers on one plant. The Duke of Devonshire threw open on this occasion his (adjacent) grounds - so fine glass & picturesquely, and such noble Cedars of Lebanon near the Villa. - among the very largest in England, the lower banks stretching out 40 or 50 feet & spreading a thick plateau of foliage, the extremity of the lower layers resting on the ground. These were three of the finest land in England, that of the 1st like Guard, - of the Bold & Stale guard, & the other regiment I fought. - The villa was fine, not very large. Hooker ^{painted out} was the room in which Banking died. - Fox died in ^{the} same room on the other side of the building. We found Sir W. Hooker & Mr. Brown ~~writing~~ looking for us. Of course it was the greatest day of my life in St. Gray's opinion: for Mr. Brown escorted me on his arm for a long time, & was very polite & agreeable. Hooker wrote letters for Dr. G. to use in the cabinet. Morning is now gone through Kensington. Saw Holland House & Kensington House in the distance. Stopped at Mr. Cooke's (a friend & companion of Ward) to tea - He is the best living Marine painter, the house full of admirable paintings & a little garden that was a perfect wonder. I should not forget to tell you that at Bisswick house, Mr. Cooke pointed out to us there, the ruined, ^{French} ~~French~~ house - "Laying down the Law" the dog as character, engraving of it. - I we got a very good b. The house of course was put through the Duke Bisswick to do it, but was friends who paid for his carpets, his dress on the ground, including with the m. was the Duchess of Sutherland, Naples. - Lord John Russell, the & Mrs. Lawrence unfortunately missed. I wet early to call on Mr. L. of course well in Badger's house. She was very cordial, ditto - very pretty. She was in that black & worn - was much exhausted, as she was and anxiety consequent on the death of Kitty (which well). After tea we drove Park at dusk. & thence Bayswater (Bayswater bridge home to Clapham).

Evening, over day. Mr. Ward well enough to come into Drawing room in afternoon. We went to Clapham Park church in evening. Monday morn. Bid adieu to our good friends left with their quantities of luggage & one carpet bag leaves the truck, I went by railway to Dover, between Folkestone & Dover very striking, going thru. low banks & terraces of the chalk cliffs that overhang the sea. Chalk cliffs more ^{overhanging} than you would imagine from the pictures, towering up in very tall & white, covered with green at the top - the sea washing them back. Castle very picturesquely -
