HARVARD UNIVERSITY,
JAMAICA PLAIN,
MASS.

December 17, 1900.

My dear Mr. Collins:

I am very much obliged for the photographs of the Fort Kent Crataegus. This particular tree had been described to be of such gigantic size that the fruit could only be gathered by the use of a ladder. Your photographs dispel this tale and show that it is really shrubby and not arborescent in habit.

With renewed thanks, I am,

Faithfully yours,

J. Franklin Collins, Esq.
Brown University, Providence.
