Dear Doctor,

I have your letter with the circular. In September I had a letter from Weigel saying that he had heard that the collection of Trenisan was now
in Genoa. Pensig,
a relative of the Trenisans, is there
and he wrote Weigel that the collection was in excellent condition

and would be bought by the University of Geneva but they cannot afford it.
Penzig wrote that the family overestimated the price
and had asked 40,000 francs but that he thought that they would sell it for about 18,000 francs which he considered a

price which it was well worth, I have never answered Weigel's letter not having time to think of the matter and having no probability of being able to pay 18,000 for the whole.
What I should like
would be the algae.
Underwood was going to try to buy the collection but I do not know whether he has
