

MUSEUM OF COMPARATIVE ZOÖLOGY,

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

July 13, 1912

Dear Mr. Kennedy,

The foremost cradle of Gilbert White's letter xii. is not enclosed in quotation marks in the first edition of Belborne, but I don't doubt ~~but~~ that he was quoting Shakespear when he used the phrase.

G. R. is James Rennie. Thomas Bell who edited White is the same man who wrote the History of British Quadrupeds, History of British Crustacea, etc.

I was sorry to give up the visit to you on Wednesday - but the terrific heat deterred me from going. I was also disappointed in missing you the day you called at the Museum. Why didn't you wait a few minutes? I had just run over to the College Library.

Sincerely yours

W. Faxon
