

DR. JONATHAN DWIGHT, JR.
2 EAST 34TH STREET
NEW YORK.

June 4/99

Dear Mr. Deane

I would be glad to tell you about Indigo if I could only spare the time for a rather long story. My paper is now waiting for the printer & I hope you will enjoy reading it, Indigo included. It hardly pays to waste time on "aptoschronatism". It is a cloak for ignorance & means nothing. Every alleged instance means faulty observation of facts or false conclusions drawn from real ones, so the word is absolutely superfluous. Butwell simply falls into the usual trap, great conclusions from small premises,

& I expect his paper will be as absurd as the one on the parrot.
The Arch wisely declined to publish the trash & it got into the Osprey's claws. You need not quote me to Mr. Britwell just now for I "see his finish". I have only 120 reasons why he is wrong!

I trust Mr. Brewster is well,
& hope Batchelder is about again.
I have not heard from him lately,
but the accident was serious.

Good-bye now, in haste

Yours sincerely

J. L. Wright Jr.

Dwight, Jonathan. 1899. "Dwight, Jonathan Jan. 4, 1899." Walter Deane correspondence

View This Item Online: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/164559>

Permalink: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/288973>

Holding Institution

Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by

IMLS

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The BHL considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection.

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org>.