Malden Mass. Oct. 24. 1904.

Dear Mr. Davenport.

My friend Dr.

Letchell of the University of California, has written me to ask if I could get him a good supply of Ophioglossum or Botrychium, fertile fronds, for class work.
The specimens would have to be collected fresh, & preserved in formalin.

I don't think it at all probable that we could get him Ophioglossum, but there used to be places where Botrychium was plenty enough, so that any ordinary collecting would do no harm. Can you tell me any near by place where I could get a supply?

Very truly
