San Bernardino June 5
Dear Sir

I had a little talk yesterday with Sam.

Parish about my new juncus (Bot Gazette, June '81, by Engelmann) & his new cheilanthes. He was fairly communicative - described the fern as much resembling the Sto Parryi - said that one on seeing it would think - "that's a rather odd-looking Sto Parryi" - that the most noticeable difference at first sight ~~is a~~ brownish or reddish stripe or line along up the mid-vein - that it has the same woolly look, & is also scaly.

I asked if he had many specimens, & he said "no" ~~that~~ it was, as far as he at-present knew, very scarce - that it was now out of season & so he could not tell yet whether it was very rare or not.

Now if to that description you can add when it was <sup>& whether it was then past its prime or not,</sup> collected, and where, (as closely as you feel at liberty; the altitude, &c., & send me a fragment of it, perhaps I can come across it in due time.

I have nothing of interest to write about myself. Think I will not do much botanizing this year - hope by another season to have my business in such shape that I can collect with more leisure & comfort. At present when I leave the car the boat, <sup>"business"</sup> at once begins to retrograde.

Yours truly W. G. Wright
