

11 Wells Ave.

East Hartford, Conn.

March 14, 1920

Dear Mr. Deane :-

Yes, I did send you a specimen of Carex laeviraginata, though I cannot now remember just when. I am sorry it has disappeared. Just now my duplicates are in much disorder, but I plan to sort them within the next week or so and will then send you another sheet of the Carex if I have one. I am not sure.

I have been so completely over-burdened that I did not even know you had any cause to use a cane, and my sorry I am to hear it. Whatever the reason, I trust it may soon vanish.

I remember no other winter when we lived, as this year, two feet of snow on a level for six weeks at a time. I have had a good deal more exercise than I needed shovelling snow and chopping ice, but in the intervals have continued to get a good bit of work done
on my herbarium.

With love from us both regards to Miss
Brown and all good wishes,

Sincerely

Chas. D. Whitney

Weatherby, Charles Alfred. 1920. "Weatherby, Charles Alfred Mar. 14, 1920."
Walter Deane correspondence

View This Item Online: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/163304>

Permalink: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/304119>

Holding Institution

Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by

IMLS

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The BHL considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection.

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org>.