

and go as you will.
There are woods for birds, and I want you to tell me what they are. You can sit on the porch
and dream whilst Wilson's Thrush dis-
solves himself in song.
Come to Bailiwick!

We are all well. Drop me a line when the spirit
moves.

Dear Deane:

Your good letter is at hand. Much obliged for its good cheer. I am not ill, — only a little crosser than usual.
I had a most happy
time in the west, but it was a very busy
and trying one; and when I came back
I found that I was somewhat played

out. Howsoever, I am alright now and am eating all that I can buy or get trusted for.

I wish that you
were with me up
here at Bailinick.
It is a picturesque
and weedy old farm in which I take infinite delight. Just now I am harvesting the
finest crop of peaches
I ever saw and am

getting very fancy prices.
In a few years Baili-wick will have a
great show of fruit.

Now, can't you and Mrs. D. arrange to visit us next summer? You can row and swim
and ride all you want.
A wee little room under the wide spreading roof-
tree — Juglans cinerea
— will be yours. It will open on to the soft green grass, so
that you can come
