PSITTACUS GUINEENSIS.

Edw. Av. t. 237. f. 1.

Lath. Synops. 1. p. 309.

In caveis inclusam hanc aviculam plerique tam frequenter conspexerunt, ut hoc ipsum ab admiratione detrahat quam aliter sibi vindicaret excellens pulchritudo. Historiæ naturalis cultoribus tam probe cognita est hæc species, ut illam peculiariter describere non sit necesse : satis sit dicere speciem esse pulcherriam ; moresque ejus suaves et mansuetos formæ tam eximiæ bene respondere. Africæ est indigena, et in Guinea frequentissima est. In India etiam Orientali invenitur. Nomen ejus Anglicanum commune est Guinea-Sparrow.

RED-HEADED GUINEA PARRAKEET.

Latham, fol. 1. p. 309.

This beautiful little bird is so often seen in cages, that the circumstance of its not being a rare species seems in some degree to lessen the admiration due to its uncommon elegance. As it is so well known to Naturalists, it is unnecessary to say more than that it is one of the most brilliant of its genus, and that the beauty of its appearance is equalled by the gentleness of its manners. It is an African bird, and abounds in Guinea. It is also found in the East Indies. In England this bird is generally called by the name of the Guinea-Sparrow.
